

JULIANNA ZIEGLER

(1984-present)

For as long as she can remember, Julianna has been drawing. Her love for nature constantly encourages her to explore new mediums and styles. She is continuously inspired by the works of fellow artists, both past and current. Michelangelo has consistently been among her favorites since the age of six. Ziegler's most recent works are life drawings in charcoal and mixed media, and oil paintings. She also enjoys working in pastel, acrylic, scratch board, watercolor and glass etching. She has earned a range of awards in assorted media since the fourth grade. Her favorite aspect of drawing is in watching the creation unfold before her, wrought by her hands but not always having a predetermined plan.

After growing up in Ohio, Ziegler moved to Hawaii in 2004 in search of inspiration and adventure, both of which she continues to find in daily experiences. Besides painting and drawing, she enjoys scuba diving, cliff-jumping, and traveling. She has a strong interest in sustainable farming, raising dairy goats and layer hens to produce eggs, milk and cheese for her family, and canning home grown vegetables.

Although most of her artistry is self taught, the skill being honed through a lifetime of practice, she has enjoyed attending workshops and earning her BA in art at University of Hawaii at Hilo.

Her artwork has been exhibited throughout the Island of Hawaii, as well as in Ohio at the Butler Art Institute, among other venues. It is collected throughout the United States and Japan. It is currently shown in Hilo at One Gallery and Banyan Gallery, and in Volcano at Volcano Garden Arts.
