
LINDA S WATSON

BIOGRAPHY

Linda S. Watson was born in San Mateo, California and has lived and worked in the San Francisco Bay Area all her life. She is a painter and mixed media artist currently working and living in the Puna district of the Big Island. She studied Fine Art, Textiles and Art History at San Francisco State University. For over 30 years, her creations have been exhibited in many Bay Area solo and group art shows. Some of the galleries that have shown her work include the Palo Alto Cultural Center, the Mendocino Art Center, the Olive Hyde Gallery in Fremont, the Main Library in San Francisco and the Overlook Gallery in Sonoma. Her works are owned by private collectors throughout America. Over the years, some of her fiber and mixed media pieces have won "Best of Show" at the Sonoma County Fair.

Linda is a member of the East Hawaii Cultural Center and the Volcano Art Center. In Hawaii her work is currently represented by One Gallery in Hilo, and the Rainforest Gallery in Volcano. She feels privileged to be part of the Big Island's thriving art community. Her work can be viewed online at Fine Art America.
